WE think there is too much personality in the gubernatorial canvass in this state, but we are happily far from the pitch of excitement that the race between Gen. Gordon and Maj. Bacon for gov. ernor of Georgia has called out. In a joint-discussion, or joint-vituperation, at regiment during the war, and left the Who asserts it lies; who insinuates it lles; whose repeats it, after hearing me to-day, that I ever resigned any public trust, in peace or war, when my services ; could benefit my people or country, and when I was physically able to serve them,

Let's hope that the very exciting questions of lease law or free grass, Indiana stone or Texas granite, the capitol contract, railroads and other prominent subjects of discussion will not provoke such language from any of the esteemed candidates in Texas as the Georgia andiences are reguled with.

AN UNFORTUNATE PARALLEL. paring their chieftain to Andrew Jackson, and trying to make out a parallel to the fortunes of their presidential aspirations. As Jackson was beaten in 1824, and renominated and elected in 1828, so they hold out the hope that Blaine, beaten in 1884, will be the candidate to lead bis party to victory in 1888.

So far as being defeated, there is a sim-Biaine. The same thing may be said of every defeated candidate for the presidency. The point that the Republicans ignore is the dissimilarity in the manner in which the two were beaten. Jackson Was one of four candidates, neither of the addressed to Tun Garnar, Fort Worth, Tes. whom obtained a majority of the electoral whom obtained a majority of the electoral vote. The election was thus cast in the house of representatives, where, by a combination of the friends of Clay and Adams, their supporters voted for Adams and elected him. Though Jackson had a larger number of votes than THE GAZETTE is the only Morning Adams in the electoral college, he was thus deprived of the presidency. The people so strongly resented the appearance of a bargain between Clay and Adams to keep Jackson out that he was renominated and elected in 1828 by an overwhelming majority. There is nothing in Blaine's case to excite indignation. He was fairly beaten before the people by a fixed by the state, and to pur- ion and upon the pretty thread of a love
